Weekly COAL Bulletin

of the Federal Fuel Administration for Philadelphia

The advantages of using Egg and Pea Coal

As previously announced, it is necessary to limit the amount of stove and nut coal to two tons to the domestic consumer during October. This is because the Government needs these two sizes of coal in camps and aboard ship to use in cooking for our fighters.

But the two-ton limit does not apply to the Egg and Pea sizes. If you change your order, or at least part of it, to Egg and Pea coal, your dealer can probably give you quicker delivery than he could otherwise.

How to Use 60% Egg and 40% Pea Coal Mixed Keep the Egg and Pea coal in separate bins. If you have a good bed of fire, put Egg coal on first and then add a smaller amount of Pea coal. If fire is low, put on a little Pea coal, and after a good bed of fire is formed, add Egg and Pea coal as above.

How to Burn 100% Pea Coal in Heater and Range Always carry a layer of ashes on grate to prevent coal from falling through. Shake grates with short strokes, just enough to remove most of ashes; leave a layer on grate.

Then slightly loosen up fire with poker so that air can pass up through it. Allow fire to burn up brightly, then add a little coal.

fire box with coal almost to bottom of coaling door. Above rules apply to Steam, Hot-Water, Vapor, Warm-Air Heating Plants and Stoves.

Allow fire to burn rather freely for about 15 minutes, then fill
